SHELL EXPLODES AFTER 51 YEARS

Missile Picked up on Gettysburg Battlefield Bursts with Terrific Force when Cap Sets off its Powder, still Active.

Using a small cap on an unexploded shell, picked up on Gettysburg's field of battle fifty one years ago, Abraham Orris, a prominent farmer of Lower Frankford township, Cumberland County, saw the relic blown into fragments, the powder remaining active after half a century.

Mr. Orris came into possession of the shell rather recently when he secured it from an estate of which he was the administrator. He became nervous about having the unexploded missile about the place and suggested to a gang of telephone linemen, who happened to be digging pole holes in his section, the advisability of placing the shell in one of the holes, attaching a dynamite cap to same, and by use of the battery exploding the shell.

The linemen accepted the proposition, and placing the shell in the hole, attached a cap to it, and then applied the battery. The explosion was terrific and the shell was blown into fragments, and more earth was torn loose than six dynamite sticks would have accomplished.

Many of the shells held here in town, or sold in past years to tourists, would explode in the same way, it is believed, if some effort were made to "set them off". No one was hurt in the Cumberland County man's experiment but the wisdom of burying the shell before applying the current was forcibly demonstrated.

TO-NIGHT

First Class Attraction is Booked for Walter's Theatre.

Investigation of the records of long play runs reveals the fact that Oliver Morosco's production of "Peg O' My Heart" to be seen here this evening is the holder of one world's record and stands high in the list of long runs. Its engagement of 604 consecutive performances at the Cort Theatre, New York, is the longest run ever achieved on any stage by a woman star, the longest previous run being that of Miss Maude Adams in "The Little Minister" for 299 performances. "Peg" has the third longest run in the history of the New York stage, the longest distance title being held by the Charles Hoyt farce, "A Trip to Chinatown", which ran for 656 performances, while "The Lion and the Mouse" had 620 consecutive exhibitions to its credit before it ceased its Manhattan regime.—advertisement

WILL PUBLISH NAMES SATURDAY

List of Candidates will be Changed Daily and All Votes will be Credited as Soon as they Reach the Office. Workers Benefited.

In to-morrow evening's paper, for the first time, will be published the list of nominations that have been sent in for The Times and News Circulation Campaign. Each of the contestants will be credited with the five thousand votes by the nomination blank and any other votes that they have brought in or that have been sent in for them. Then each day this list will be printed and changed, crediting all votes that have been sent in since the previous day.

This list is eagerly awaited by the readers of The Times and News and they will watch it closely from now until the end of the contest. By it they will be able to tell who are really working in the campaign and who are deserving of their help. It will prove a great benefit to the hustlers and will help them to get many subscriptions.

With the first publication of this list the contest can be said to be started. Up to this time, there have been a great many inquiries and many questions asked about the details of the plan. But thus far little work has been done, and those who are just entering now will be the earliest ones and will find that they have a decided advantage over those who enter later.

Send in your name to-day if you have not already done so. Get it in on the first list so that all of your friends will know that you are in the race and they will save their subscriptions for you. Get started now, while the field is clear, and you will be surprised with what ease you can gather the subscriptions and how fast you can make your vote total climb.

PLAN FOR CONCERTS

Hop to Secure Kneisel Quartet for Evening here.

Gettysburg's many musical people will be glad to know that the committee, who had in charge the Bismpham recital of last season, are planning for one or more concerts of an equally high order this year. For the first of these they hope to be able to secure the Kneisel Quartet of Boston, an organization acknowledged by music lovers generally to be without equals in the realm of chamber music. Their annual series of concerts in Boston, New York, Philadelphia and other musical centers always attract large audiences, and Gettysburg will be particularly fortunate if the string quartet can be brought here.

EARLY MORNING HOME WEDDING

Miss Mary G. Emmert and Dr. Bender Z. Cashman Married at Five O'clock at the Home of the Bride in New Oxford.

The wedding of two of New Oxford's best known young people took place at five o'clock this morning when Miss Mary G. Emmert and Dr. Benjamin Z. Cashman were married. The ceremony was performed by Dr. R. S. Oyler, pastor of the Methodist church at Gettysburg and New Oxford.

The marriage occurred in the parlor at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. William H. Emmert, on Centre Square, and was attended by only the immediate relatives and friends. Miss Nita Cashman, a sister of the bridegroom, was maid of honor, and Dr. N. H. Baker, of Pittsburgh was the best man.

The ceremony had been placed for the hour of five o'clock with the evident intent of the bride and bridegroom to start on the Eastern Express on their honeymoon. While the guests were enjoying the wedding breakfast, which followed the ceremony, Dr. and Mrs. Cashman quietly got away in an automobile and were out of town before their absence was detected. The place of their wedding journey is not known.

The bride has hosts of friends not only in New Oxford but in Gettysburg and other county towns. She is possessed of a beautiful soprano voice and has frequently sung at various concerts and on other occasions in this place. She studied under Madame Phillips Jenkins, of Philadelphia, and was for several years soprano soloist of one of the principal churches in Germantown. The past winter she has been singing at Atlantic Beach, Florida.

Dr. Cashman is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Z. H. Cashman, of New Oxford. He was graduated from Gettysburg College in 1905 and from the Medical Department of Johns Hopkins University four years later. He took his hospital course at St. Francis Hospital, Pittsburgh, and is now practicing with one of the leading surgeons of that city.

BOLD THIEVES

Hanover Home Robbed of $400 Worth of Jewelry.

Climbing over a porch roof and effecting entrance through a window, second story men Wednesday night robbed the residence of J. W. Gitt in Hanover while the family were away from home, and managed to get away with about $400 worth of jewelry. Incidentally a valuable necklace was overlooked.

The house was ransacked from top to bottom. The thieves evidently were only after articles which could easily be concealed, for they were satisfied with diamond rings and watches. Among the articles missing are a diamond ring valued at $250, a woman's watch worth $100, two loose diamonds and several other rings. The robbery was a particularly bold one, for the Gitt residence is centrally located and the theft occurred between 7 and 10 o'clock in the evening. Mr. Gitt offers a reward for the recovery of the stolen property. Detectives are working on the case.

FOE FAILS TO CHECK ADVANCE OF ALLIES

Kaiser's Right Wing Hurlled Back.

SAYS THEIR LINES HOLD

Berlin Claims They Repulsed Enemy at Albert.

INDIAN TROOPS AT FRONT

70 000 British Oriental Soldiers on the Firing Line.

London, Oct. 2.—While official reports both from France and Berlin deny any important changes have occurred in the battle line in France, which apparently stretches from the Belgian frontier near Valenciennes to the juncture of the Oise and the Aisne rivers and then along the Aisne to the Argonne region and the valley of the Meuse.

At the same time unofficial reports credit the French with a steady advance toward the north of the Somme river in an encircling movement, that it is believed is forcing the retirement of the German right under Von Kluck.

The German version is that the allies failed in their attack on the German forces between Albert and Comblès, north of the Somme; that the Germans are slowly gaining in the Argonne district, with "no change in the situation" along the Meuse, where they are attacking the outer line of French forts between Verdun and Toul.

It is in the Toul district that the French claim to be successful in making as much progress as they have on their extreme left, north of the river Somme. Both official reports agree that there is little change in the central region between Rheims and the forest of Argonne.

Both sides have been reinforced on the battle line in France. Among other troops which have come to the aid of the allies that are now on the firing ground are 70,000 native troops from India, which recently landed at Marseilles.

French Statement.

The following official statement was issued in Paris:

"There is nothing of particular importance to describe except in the region of Roye (on the French left wing, twelve miles northwest of Noyon, west of the Oise, but south of the Somme), where a violent action has successfully turned in our favor, and in the Argonne, where we have made progress at several new points.

"The general situation remains satisfactory."

A communication given out later said:

"There has been no modification in the general situation. We have, nevertheless, made progress on our left, to the north of the Somme, and on our right, in the southern Woëvre district."

German Statement.

The following official communication was issued in Berlin:

"The hostile forces advancing to the north and south of Albert (a town of France, eighteen miles northeast of Amiens) have been repulsed. The general fighting on our right continues, the French resuming their assaults at various points. The fighting is in progress with great severity, but there has been no decisive gain by either side in this section.

"In Argonne our attack is progressing steadily though slowly. At the outer forts on the Meuse the line is without change.

"Wednesday the enemy advanced in Alsace and Lorraine and in the central Vosges.

"In every instance our troops have beaten back the attacks of the enemy, inflicting heavy losses. The enemy, assisted by the garrisons of the Verdun-Toul line of forts, continues its efforts to prevent the complete investment of these positions, but we are holding our line intact at every point in this territory."

The war information bureau in London announced that 70,000 Indian troops were landed in France last Friday. The point of landing was not revealed, but it is presumed that the troops disembarked at Marseilles.

A dispatch from Ghent to the Express declares that the Germans have built five heavy pontoon bridges over the River Meuse between Givet and Namur, apparently to facilitate their retreat from France. All of their wounded, the dispatch says, have been removed to Brussels.

It is officially announced that the reserve territorial and men of the auxiliary service of the north of France, who were withdrawn from that section at the time of the German invasion, while others were sent back home because they were not

GENERAL NICHOLAEVITCH.

Russian Commander Sending All His Forces Into Germany.

Russia's three great armies are now sweeping forward into Germany. The army of the south, hotly pursuing the Austrians through Galicia, has occupied Dombrowa and Tarnow, the last fortified position in front of Cracow. The army of the north, under General Rennenkampf, has resumed the offensive in East Prussia after driving back the German forces from the Niemen. Now the great center Russian army, which has been moving across Russian Poland, is in action and making its weight felt against the German defense lines.

needed, now also have been sent home temporarily.

Princess to Award Honors.

In a dispatch from Berlin, sent by way of The Hague, the correspondent of the Exchange Telegraph company says that the German Crown Princess Cecilie, accompanied by her two eldest sons, has left Berlin to join the crown prince at his headquarters in France. She purposes personally to bestow decorations upon officers of her dragon regiment.

The Times says that it is able to give from a thoroughly trustworthy source the text of an order issued by Emperor William to his army on Aug. 19. It follows:

"It is my royal and imperial command that you concentrate your energies for the immediate present upon the single purpose, and that is, that you address all your skill and all the valor of my soldiers to exterminate first the treacherous English and walk over General French's contemptible little army."

On Wednesday the Germans were again in Peronne and their advance guard was pushing a good way beyond. Your correspondent is sure this is only a temporary stand, at for the moment it succeeds, and it shows how resolute the spirit of the German army still is.

Nor is it possible to hear of the dogged courage of the French without a thrill of warm admiration. At eleven o'clock one morning the French advance was subjected to a terrible concentrated fire. It seemed impossible for the troops to hold their ground. Even the French artillery had to abandon position after position.

At two o'clock the shells began to fall around the crossroads where the staff were. The general was urged to quit.

"No," he said, "so long as I stay here we cannot retreat, and we simply have got to hold on."

He said the same when three farms close by were in flames. He said it and he meant it.

At three o'clock he was there still, and his men held their own. At four o'clock the German fire slackened a little and the infantry attack was pushed forward. That evening the French guns were occupying the positions which the German guns had held all day.

The general had "held on." There can be no longer any doubt that the backbone of the enemy's resistance along the Aisne has been broken, and that there must soon be another retreat to the north and east but they must hold this flank to the last moment, for on it depends the security of their center, which has been shaken and will again be attacked by fresh British troops.

Fighting in South Africa.

TO SEIZE GOODS IN U. S. SHIPS

American Flag Will Not Protect Contraband.

PAGE TAKES SUBJECT UP

State Department Makes Vigorous Protest Against Proposed Action of England.

Washington, Oct. 2.—Vigorous protest by this country against Great Britain's declared purpose to seize all cargoes destined for Germany and Austria, deemed contraband, even if they are carried in American ships, led to renewed conferences at the state department between Sir Cecil Spring Rice, the British ambassador, who had notified this government of England's position, and Secretary of State Bryan.

As a result it was announced that Great Britain had conceded the United States contention as far as foodstuffs were concerned, and that there would be no interference with shipments of such products to Holland.

Furthermore, a revision by the British government of its proclamation with respect to contraband was promised.

President Wilson told callers that the British government has been most friendly in its attitude on shipments of possible unneutral character in American vessels and had shown a willingness to discuss the question. He declared that he had no doubt that a satisfactory arrangement would be reached.

The state department's statement after the conference read:

"It is understood that the British government intends to revise its proclamation with respect to contraband, and meanwhile in neutral ships goods, such as foodstuffs consigned to Holland, in respect to which the Netherlands government has placed an embargo on exportation will not be treated as contraband."

That the position of the allies toward conditional contraband of war will be one of requiring proof of innocent intention was indicated when the British embassy made a claim that copper cargoes seized on their way to Holland would not be restored. The copper seized recently by the British was on its way to the Krupp gun works in Germany by way of Holland.

The position of the French government is indicated by the announcement that French warships recently seized a cargo of silver bars consigned by the Guggenheims to the Bank of Holland. The silver was released only after a French prize court had determined that the cargo was actually destined for Holland, a neutral country, and had been ordered before the beginning of the war.

The British position caused the first serious complication which has arisen between the United States and any of the warring powers of Europe so far in the war.

GERMAN LOSSES 125 000

Latest Casualty List, Including Three Major Generals, Adds 8000 to Total.

Berlin, Oct. 2.—The thirty-eighth German casualty list, just made public, contains about 8000 names.

It includes three major generals, one killed and two wounded. Major General Scherbening was killed, while Major General Emil Henigst was slightly wounded and Major General Oskar Renter was dangerously wounded.

(The previous casualty lists brought the total of German dead, wounded and missing up to 117,000, so that with the addition of the most recent list the losses now number 125,000. The majority, it is said, are named as missing. The total covers the fighting in both the eastern and western theaters of war.)

GERMAN INVASION OF POLAND FAILS

Czar Takes Offensive and the Kaiser Loses 24,000 Men.

Petrograd, Oct. 2.—Continued success of the Russian attacks on the German invaders of Russian Poland is announced in a dispatch from Grand Duke Nicholas, commander-in-chief of all the Russian armies.

This is the seventh day of the conflict precipitated by the Germans' attempt to cross the Niemen and take the fortress of Ossowiec.

It is stated at the war office in Petrograd that they have failed in both efforts and that large reinforcements are being sent from the west to assist the Germans.

This announcement that the Russians had captured German positions on the Augustow-Kopelowa line indicates that the Russians are attempting a movement that will drive a wedge between the German forces and split them into two bodies whose strength will be greatly lessened.

The battle line of the Russo-German conflict extends from Ossowiec, on the Bobr river, north of Mariampol, a distance of seventy-eight miles. Fighting is continuous on practically all of these lines; through a heavy rain has been falling for two days.

The losses on both sides have been heavy. The correspondent of the Novorossyia states that in the fighting at Drussienki, two entire German divisions (24,000 men) were destroyed. The war office has not confirmed this report.

The situation in East Prussia, on the flank of the advancing lines, however, is so important that the German forces here must be sufficient to form a serious menace, forcing the Russians to detach large forces to keep any offensive move in check.

AUSTRIA APOLOGIZES

Deplores Sinking of Italian Vessels and Will Indemnify Sufferers.

Rome, Oct. 2.—The Austrian government has replied to the Italian protest against the floating mines in the Adriatic sea.

It is reported that Italy demands an indemnity from Austria of $1,000,000.

Germans Sink British Ship.

Callao, Peru, Oct. 2.—The Kosmos steamer Marie arrived here with the crew of the British steamer Bankfields, which was sunk by the German cruiser Leipzig off Etien, Peru. The crew have appealed to the British consul in Callao in the hope of obtaining their liberty. The men said their ship carried a cargo of sugar valued at $500,000. The Marie was followed into port by the German steamer Amasis, also of the Kosmos line.

SULPHUR FOR ECZEMA

APPLIED LIKE COLD CREAM IT STOPS ITCHING AND DRIES SKIN ERUPTIONS RIGHT UP

With the first application of bold-sulphur cream the angry itching attending any eczema eruption ceases and its remarkable healing powers begin. Sulphur, says a renowned dermatologist, is the common bold-sulphur, made into a thick cream will soothe and heal the skin when irritated and broken out with eczema or any form of eruption. The moment it is applied all itching ceases, and after two or three applications the Eczema disappears, leaving the skin clear and smooth. He tells Eczema sufferers to get from any good pharmacy an ounce of bold-sulphur cream and apply it to the irri-

VIVID STORIES OF SUBMARINE ONSET

Told by Survivors of Lost British Cruisers.

SPLENDID HEROISM SHOWN.

Men Fighting For Their Lives In the Sea After Torpedoes' Deadly Work
Shouted Cheering Messages to One Another—"Germans Came Right Up Under Noses of Our Guns."

Survivors tell graphic stories of the destruction of the British armored cruisers/Aboukir, Hogue and Cressy.
Describing the sinking of the Cressy
Chief Gunner Dougherty said:

"Suddenly I heard a great crash and saw the Aboukir heeling over and going down rapidly. We came to the conclusion that she had been struck by a torpedo, and kept a sharp lookout for these craft while steaming to the assistance of the Aboukir."

"The Hogue was also closing up toward the sinking ship with the object of assisting the crew, who were dropping into the water, when we heard a second crash. As the Hogue began to settle we knew that she also had been torpedoed."

"As we drew near, some one shouted to me, 'Look out, sir, there's a submarine on our port beam!'"

"She was about 400 yards away. I took careful aim at her and she disappeared. Up she came again so I fired my third shot and smashed in the top of the conning tower."

Let Out a Great Shout of Joy.

"The men standing by shouted, 'She's hit, sir!' and then they let out a great cheer as the submarine sank, and while she was going down two German sailors floated up from her, both swimming hard."

"After that we shot at a trawler which was 1,000 yards away and evidently a German boat in disguise, directing operations. We hit her with the first shot and set her on fire."

"By this time we already had been struck by one torpedo, but the damage was not in a vital spot and we should have kept afloat all right. We saw another submarine on our starboard side and made a desperate effort to get her, but failed, and her torpedo got home in our engine room."

"Then the Cressy began to turn over, and this I will say for the men," said Mr. Dougherty proudly, "they acted like British sailors, and those who died died as a Briton should."

"Our captain was on the bridge, and in these critical minutes he spoke some words of advice to the crew. 'Keep cool, my lads, keep cool,' he said in a steady voice. 'Pick up a spar, my lads, and put it under your arm. That'll help you to keep afloat until the destroyers pick you up.'"

Water Thick With Drowning Men.

"They were discharging torpedoes at us while the water was thick with drowning men. When I dropped into the sea, clinging to a bit of wood, there were men all around me. We shouted cheery messages to one another. I was afloat for four hours."

Says a Mulden, Holland, dispatch to the London Daily Chronicle:

"The men of the Aboukir afloat in the water hoped for everything from the arrival of her sister cruisers, and all survivors agree that when these also sank many gave up the struggle for life and went down. An officer told me that when swimming, after having lost his jacket in the grip of a drowning man, his chief thought was that the Germans had succeeded in sinking only three comparatively obsolete cruisers which shortly would have been scrapped anyway."

"Twenty-four men were saved on a target which floated off the Hogue's deck. The men were gathered on it for four hours waist deep in water."

"The daring of those Germans was amazing. They must have seen us a long way off. We could not see them, and they came right up under the noses
of our guns."

MEXICO'S NEW REVOLUTION.

Villa's Plans For March on Mexico City
to Oust Carranza.

Now that General Villa has definitely broken with General Carranza and announced that he will fight to the last Torreón becomes the center of interest in the new war in Mexico. It is at Torreón that Villa expects the big battle, and he is preparing that city for a vigorous defense and a possible siege.
All troops ordered to Sonora by Villa have been recalled and are being hurried to the south. All troops in Chihuahua City are being sent to Torreón, and every garrison in the north is being stripped of men to mobilize at Torreón the greatest army that Villa has put into the field. Villa has made plans for an immediate movement against Mexico City.

Villa holds all northern Mexico and in this position has advantages which will count seriously against Carranza.
Villa will be able to control the rail communication with the United States.

DINNER MENU.

Farina Soup.
Potatoes au Gratin.
Creamed Parsnips.
Turkish Bean Salad.
Baked Round Steak.
White Pudding.
Coffee.

WHEN butchers' prices soar and the best steak comes high the cheaper cuts may be substituted for them. The tenderness and palatableness of a steak are largely dependent on the way it is prepared. A good way of cooking steak is given here.

Farina Soup.—Take one-half pound of butter, melt in a casserole dish, and when hot add three-quarters of a pound of farina. Cook on top of the range, stirring with a wooden spoon so it will not stick to the bottom. Cook until the color of a chestnut, then add two quarts of boiling water, season with salt and pepper and boil for one hour.

Bean Salad.—Take eight small onions, peel and slice in rings. Pour cold water on them and drain. Place in a salad bowl, add one pint and a half of boiled lima beans, or cold baked beans

may be used. Mix the onions in lightly together with a teaspoonful of salt, one half teaspoonful of paprika, two tablespoonfuls olive oil, one teaspoonful white sugar and three-fourths cupful of vinegar. Mold, garnish with olives and two sliced hard boiled eggs and serve on lettuce with cheese fingers.

Baked Round Steak.—Take a slice of round steak, cut about one and one-half inches thick, cover with flour and using the edge of a plate or meat pounder, pound as much as possible into the meat. Melt two tablespoonfuls of butter in a baking pan and when hot brown the meat quickly on both sides, sprinkle with salt and pepper

and cover with a cupful of boiling water or tomatoes. Cover closely and bake in a slow oven for several hours, or until the meat is tender throughout.

Serve with tomato sauce or with gravy.

White Pudding.—Take one heaping teaspoonful of granulated gelatin and sunk in one-fourth cupful of cold water for ten minutes. Dissolve it in one cupful of boiling water, add a cupful of sugar and a quarter cupful of lemon juice. Strain and cool. When cool and just ready to set, beat until frothy and add the stiffly beaten whites of three eggs and continue to beat until the mixture will hold its shape. Mold in any desired form and chill thoroughly.

Serve with custard sauce.

Sauce.—Beat the yolks of the eggs

and add one-quarter cupful of sugar

Stir into this gradually two cupfuls of scalded milk. When completely mixed place on the stove in a double boiler and cook until the mixture thickens.

Add a teaspoonful of vanilla and chill

CHAPTER V.

The Bird Behind Bars.

The most beautiful blue Irish eyes in the world gazed out at the dawn which turned night-blue into day-blue and paled the stars. Rosal lay the undulating horizon, presently to burst into living flame, transmuting the dull steel bars of the window into fairy gold, that trick of alchemy so futilely sought by man. There was a window at the north and another at the south, likewise barred; but the Irish eyes never sought these two. It was from the east window only that they could see the long white road that led to Paris.

The nightingale was truly caged. But the wild heart of the eagle beat in this nightingale's breast, and the eyes burned as fiercely toward the east as the east burned toward the west. Sunday and Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday and Thursday, today; and that the five dawns were singular in beauty and that she had never in her life before witnessed the creation of five days, one after another, made no impression upon her sense of the beautiful, so delicate and receptive in ordinary times. She was conscious that within her the cup of wrath was overflowing. Of other things, such as eating and sleeping and moving about in her cage (more like an eagle in a den than a nightingale), recurrence had blunted her perception.

"Oh, but he shall pay, he shall pay!"

she murmured, striving to loosen the bars with her small, white, helpless hands. The cry seemed to be an aria, for through all these four maddening days she had voiced it—now low and deadly with hate, now full-toned in burning anger, now broken by sobs of despair. "Will you never come, so that I may tell you how base and vile you are?" she further addressed the east.

She had waited for his appearance on Sunday. Late in the day one of the jailers had informed her that it was impossible for the gentleman to come before Monday. So she marshaled her army of phrases, of accusations, of denunciations, ready to smother him with them the moment he came. But he came not Monday, nor Tuesday, nor Wednesday. The suspense was to her mind diabolical. She began to understand, he intended to keep her there till he was sure that her spirit was broken, then he would come. Break her spirit? She laughed wildly. He could break her spirit no more easily than she could break these bars. To bring her to Versailles upon an errand of mercy! Well, he was capable of anything.

She was not particularly distressed because she knew that it would not be possible for her to sing again until the following winter in New York. She had sobbed too much, with her face buried in the pillow. Had these sobs been born of weakness, all might have been well; but rage had mothered them, and thus her voice was in a very bad way. This morning she was noticeably hoarse, and there was a break in the aria. No, she did not fret over this side of the calamity. The sting of it all lay in the fact that she had been outraged in the matter of personal liberty, with no act of reprisal to ease her immediate longing to be avenged.

Nora, as she stood in the full morning sunlight, was like to gladden the eyes of all mankind. She was beautiful, and all adjectives applicable would but serve to confuse rather than to embellish her physical excellence. She was as beautiful as a garden rose is, needing no defense, no ramparts of cloying phrases. The day of poets is gone, otherwise she would have been sung in cantos. She was tall, shapely, deep-bodied, fine-skinned. Critics, in praising her charms, delved into mythology and folklore for comparisons, until there wasn't a goddess left on Olympus or on Northland's icy capes; and when these images became a little shop-worn, referred to certain masterpieces of the old fellows who had left nothing more to be said in oils. Nora enjoyed it all.

She had not been happy in the selection of her stage name; but she had chosen Eleonora da Toscana because she believed there was good luck in it. Once, long before the world knew of her, she had returned home from Italy unexpectedly. "Molly, here's Nora, from Tuscany!" her delighted father had cried; who at that time had a nebulous idea that Tuscany was somewhere in Ireland because it had a Celtic ring to it. Being filled with love of Italy, its tongue, its history, its physical beauty, she naively translated "Nora from Tuscany" into Italian, and declared that when she went upon the stage she would be known by that name. There had been some smiling over the pseudonym; but Nora was Irish enough to cling to it. By and by the great music-loving public ceased to concern itself about her name; it was her fresh beauty and her wonderful voice they craved to see and hear. Kings and queens, emperors and empresses, princes and princesses—what is called royalty and nobility in the newspapers freely gave her homage. Quite a rise in the world for a little girl who had once lived in a shabby apartment in New York and run barefooted on the wet asphalt, summer nights!

But Nora was not recalling the happy scenes of her childhood; indeed, no; she was still threatening Paris. Once there, she would not lack for reprisals. To have played on her tender concern for the unfortunate! Never would she forgive such baseness. And only a little while ago she had been as happy as the nightingale to which they compared her. Never had she wronged anyone; she had been kindness and thoughtfulness to all with whom she had come in contact. But from now on! . . . Her fingers tightened round the bars. She might have posed as Dido when she learned that the noble Aeneas was dead. War, war; woe to the moths who fluttered about her head hereafter!

Ah, but had she been happy? Her hands slid down the bars. Her expression changed. The mouth drooped, the eagle-light in her eyes dimmed. From out the bright morning, somewhere, had come weariness, and with this came weakness, and finally, tears. She heard the key turn in the lock. They had never come so early before. She was astonished to see that her jailer did not close the door as usual. He put down the breakfast tray on the table. There was tea and toast and fruit.

"Mademoiselle, there has been a terrible mistake," said the man humbly. "Ah! So you have found that out?" she cried.

"Yes. You are not the person for whom this room was intended." Which was half a truth and perfectly true, paradoxical as it may seem. "Eat your breakfast in peace. You are free, mademoiselle."

"Free? You will not hinder me if I walk through that door?"

"No, mademoiselle. On the contrary, I shall be very glad, and so will my brother, who guards you at night. I repeat, there has been a frightful mistake. Monsieur Champeaux . . ."

"Monsieur Champeaux?" Nora was bewildered. She had never heard this name before.

"He calls himself that," was the diplomatic answer.

All Nora's suspicious took firm ground again. "Will you describe this Monsieur Champeaux to me?" asked the actress coming into life.

"He is short, dark, and old, mademoiselle."

"Rather is he not tall, blond and young?" ironically.

The jailer concealed what annoyance he felt. In his way he was just as capable an actor as she was. The accuracy of her description startled him; for the affair had been carried out so adroitly that he had been positive that until her real captor appeared she would be totally in the dark regarding his identity. And here she had hit it off in less than a dozen words. Oh, well; it did not matter now. She might try to make it unpleasant for his employer, but he doubted the ultimate success of her attempts. However, the matter was at an end as far as he was concerned.

"Have you thought what this means? It is abduction. It is a crime you have committed, punishable by long imprisonment."

"I have been mademoiselle's jailer, not her abductor. And when one is poor and in need of money!" He shrugged.

"I will give you a thousand francs for the name and address of the man who instigated this outrage."

Ah, he thought; then she wasn't so sure? "I told you the name, mademoiselle. As for his address, I dare not give it, not for ten thousand francs. Besides, I have said that there has been a mistake."

"For whom have I been mistaken?" "Who but Monsieur Champeaux's wife, mademoiselle, who is not in her right mind?" with inimitable sadness.

"Very well," said Nora. "You say that I am free. That is all I want, freedom."

"In twenty minutes the electric tram leaves for Paris. You will recall, mademoiselle," humbly, "that we have taken nothing belonging to you. You "Have You Thought What This Means? It Is Abduction!"

nave your purse and hat and cloak. The struggle was most unfortunate. But, think, mademoiselle, think; we thought you to be insane!"

"Permit me to doubt that! And you are not afraid to let me go?"

"Not in the least, mademoiselle. A mistake has been made, and in telling you to go at once, we do our best to rectify this mistake. It is only five minutes to the tram. A carriage is at the door. Will mademoiselle be pleased to remember that we have treated her with the utmost courtesy?"

"I shall remember everything," ominously.

"Very good, mademoiselle. You will be in Paris before nine." With this he bowed and backed out of the room as though Nora had suddenly made a distinct ascension in the scale of importance.

"Wait!" she called.

His face appeared in the doorway again.

"Do you know who I am?"

"Since this morning, mademoiselle."

"That is all."

Free! Her veins tingled with strange exultation. He had lost his courage and had become afraid of the consequences. Free! Monsieur Champeaux indeed! Cowardice was a new development in his character. He had been afraid to come. She drank the tea, but did not touch the toast or fruit. There would be time enough for breakfast when she arrived in Paris. Her hands trembled violently as she pinned on her hat, and she was not greatly concerned as to the angle. She snatched up her purse and cloak, and sped out into the street. A phaeton awaited her.

"The tram," she said.

"Yes, mademoiselle."

"And go quickly." She would not feel safe until she was in the tram.

A face appeared at one of the windows. As the vehicle turned the corner, the face vanished; and perhaps that particular visage disappeared forever. A gray wig came off, the little gray side whiskers, the bushy gray eyebrows, revealing a clever face, not more than thirty, cunning, but humorously cunning and anything but scoundrelly. The painted scar aslant the nose was also obliterated. With haste the man thrust the evidences of disguise into a traveling bag, ran here and there through the rooms, all bare and unfurnished save the one with the bars and the kitchen, which contained two cots and some cooking utensils. Nothing of importance had been left behind. He locked the door and ran all the way to the Place d'Armes, catching the tram to Paris by a fraction of a minute.

All very well done. She would be in Paris before the police made any definite move. The one thing that disturbed him was the thought of the blockhead of a chauffeur, who had got drunk before his return from Versailles. If he talked; well, he could say nothing beyond the fact that he had deposited the singer at the house as directed. He knew positively nothing.

The man laughed softly. A thousand francs apiece for him and Antoine, and no possible chance of being discovered. Let the police find the house in Versailles; let them trace whatever paths they found; the agent would tell them, and honestly, that an aged man had rented him the house for a month and had paid him in advance. What more could the agent say? Only one bit of puzzlement: why hadn't the blond stranger appeared? Who was he, in truth, and what had been his game? All this waiting and wondering, and then a curt telegram of the night before, saying, "Release her." So much the better. What his employer's motives were did not interest him half so much as the fact that he had a thousand francs in his pocket, and that all element of danger had been done away with. True, the singer herself would move heaven and earth to find out who had been back of the abduction. Let her make her accusations. He was out of it.

ROCKEFELLER WILL STUDY LABOR ILLS

Foundation Engages Canadian to Investigate.

New York, Oct. 2.—The Rockefeller Foundation announced that it had decided to make a far-reaching investigation of industrial conditions in this country.

The announcement said that the Foundation had retained the services of W. L. Mackenzie King, former minister of labor in Canada, as director of the investigation.

The announcements were made in a statement issued by Jerome D. Green, secretary of the Rockefeller Foundation.

"In spirit and method the investigation of the problem of industrial relations will be like that carried on by the Rockefeller Institute of Medical Research," the statement says, "and other inquiries instituted by the Rockefeller boards."

"In facing the problem of industrial relations, the Rockefeller Foundation is deliberately attempting to grapple with what it believes to be the most complicated, and at the same time the most urgent question of modern times, and it is precisely for this reason that the investigation has been instituted."

"In no sense will the investigation be local or restricted or carried on with particular reference to any existing situation, or for that manner, with reference to conditions in any one country. The experience of the several countries of the world will be drawn upon."

There then follows an outline of the career of Mr. King. No mention of the amount it is proposed to expend in conducting the investigation is named in the statement. The expenses will be paid from the $100,000,000 fund in the hands of the Rockefeller Foundation, it is assumed.

FIERCELY SHELL ANTWERP FORTS

German Troops Press Attack Vigorously.

BELIEVE FALL IS IMMINENT

London Thinks City Must Soon Surrender—King Prepares to Flee to England.

London, Oct. 2.—The Antwerp correspondent of the Central News sends the following description of the German bombardment:

"From Wednesday midnight, from the slope above the fort at Waelhem I watched the glare of bursting shells. The smoke rolled over the Belgian lines and from far off I could hear the thunder of the German guns.

"Close at hand I could hear the shriek of the shells or the crash, as they smashed their way into houses or buried themselves in the earth. The Belgian line, extending from the Notre Dame in a great semi-circle, faced the storm of shell steadily and with a courage not to be surpassed.

"Although the reports that Malines had been recaptured are untrue, an armored Belgian train dropped seven shells upon the new barricades of the Germans during the night. German infantrymen, sleeping there, suffered heavily.

"Termonde has been partly flooded. It was again bombarded Wednesday by German artillery, and the firing was kept up through the night. German soldiers entered the city, and it was then bombarded by Belgian artillery.

"Another fight near Malines began on Thursday. Belgian troops left Waelhem in a sortie and took up a position near Meirlebekew, which they have held. The Germans pushed their infantry forward, but the movement was so deliberate that when darkness fell no strong effort had been made to dislodge the Belgians."

A dispatch to the Evening News from Antwerp says that the German attack on Antwerp continued throughout the night, but that the Belgian forts replied so effectively as to compel the Germans several times to change the position of their batteries. The correspondent adds:

"The Waive-St. Catherine forts remained silent for some time, leading the Germans to believe that the bombardment had silenced them.

"The Germans then sent a section with field artillery to attack the forts, only to find themselves under fire. Only a few of the attacking force escaped. Following this the Belgians made a sortie and captured several guns."

The fall of Antwerp is believed to be imminent. Despite the strength of the fortifications defending the temporary capital of Belgium, news that the Germans are bombarding it with their ponderous 42-centimeter siege guns, which batter the forts at Liege and Namur, leads military men to believe that the reduction of the works at Antwerp will prove an easy matter for the invaders.

According to an Antwerp dispatch the surrender of the forts surrounding the city has been demanded. King Albert has rejected the demand, and the bombardment of the southern forts has been resumed. It is reported that the king has prepared to flee to England if he sees the city cannot be defended successfully. The queen already is there.

SEES WAR WITH TURKEY

Trouble Over British Warships May Cause Outbreak of Hostilities.

London, Oct. 2.—The Daily Telegraph says it understands that Turkey is about to make a demand concerning the stationing of certain British warships, with which it will be impossible for Great Britain to comply.

This demand is considered likely to bring Turkey into the European war.

The Telegraph instances indications of the Turkish policy, such as the Ottoman government's ambiguous conduct in relation to the German cruisers Goeben and Breslau, the invitation to German officers to go to Constantinople, the mobilization of Turkish troops in Syria and the closing of the Dardanelles, and adds:

"If Turkey chooses war, let her clearly understand that it will mean the end not merely of Turkey in Europe, but of Turkey in Asia, and that the allied powers will exact the fullest retribution."

In the News and Out of the Ordinary

In Cleveland the city serves lunch in the public parks for 3 cents each.

A Bedford (N. Y.) man was charged with stealing $150 to get to England and join army.

The Ladies' Aid society of a church in Palm, Pa., held a quilting, at which ninety-five women completed thirty comforters and three quilts in an afternoon.

Troubled by his conscience, a resident of Maywood, Neb., requested Treasurer Guillian of Auburn to send him a statement of his personal taxes for 1883.

In order to eject some tenants who refused to pay rent or to get out, James Stephens took the entire roofs off three houses which he owns in Wheeling, W. Va.

"My mother-in-law objected to my calling her 'the courthouse,'" testified Otto Heinrich of Woodhaven, N. Y. "Why?" asked the judge. "Because I was always tried before her," returned Heinrich, "and was always convicted."

KAISER DISTRIBUTES ROSES; CLASPS HANDS OF WOUNDED

"Did You Get a Good Number of Bullets?" He Asks—Reply Pleasees.

Fuller accounts of the kaiser's movements in the front are found in papers from Germany. Recently the kaiser visited the establishment of a Protestant religious order which had been turned into a military hospital. He walked through the rows of wounded soldiers, spoke to the men and grasped the outstretched hands of those unable to salute or rise from their beds. He afterward sent a rose to every wounded soldier who did not have a personal chat with him. Incidentally he distributed Iron Crosses right and left.

The clergyman who had the care of the wounded soldiers seems to have addressed the kaiser with too heavy a heart.

"We have to make sacrifices in these times," said the emperor, and he reminded the cleric that he had six sons fighting in the war.

"Yes, your majesty, that is our pride and happiness," responded the chaplain.

"I did all in my power to keep peace," proceeded the kaiser, "but our enemies would not have peace. Now we will have to crush them to the ground."

The following story is taken from a recent German paper:

"Well, did you get a good number of bullets?"

"Yes, your majesty."

"How much per cent?"

"A hundred per cent, your majesty."

The kaiser smiled and passed on through the ranks of the Imperial grenadiers.

The kaiser was reviewing a regiment of the Imperial grenadiers commanded by his son, Prince Oscar, after the battle of Vitton.

"I salute you," he said, addressing the men just after embracing the prince. "I have often seen your gallant regiment at maneuver. It is a great pleasure for me to meet you again on conquered ground. The heroic deeds at Vitton will be engraved on the history of the war forever in golden letters. Your regiment has upheld the glorious traditions of your forefathers in 1870 and 1871."

The kaiser again kissed his son and then drove off in his motor.

Those whose hair is turning gray, becoming faded, dry, scraggly and thin have a surprise awaiting them, because after one or two applications the gray hair vanishes and your locks become luxuriantly dark and beautiful—all dandruff gone, scalp itching and falling hair stops.

This is the age of youth. Gray-haired, unattractive folks aren't wanted around, so get busy with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur to-night and you'll be delighted with your dark, handsome hair and your youthful appearance within a few days.

KEEPING A RESOLUTION

By MARGARET C. DEVEREAUX

The day I was graduated from the medical school—the only woman in my class—dear old Dr. Phillips, who handed me my diploma, said to me, with a smile:

"There it is, my dear. But it will do you no good."

"Why do you say that, doctor?" I asked, much disconcerted.

"Some young fellow will induce you to marry him, and you will have no time to practice a profession which, if practiced properly, will require all your time."

I was young and headstrong. More over, I had spent years preparing my self for my vocation. I grasped the doctor's hand and, raising my other dramatically said:

"I promise you, Dr. Phillips, that I will devote my life to the sick. I make this pledge that it shall be impossible for me to go back on my profession."

I shall never forget the kindly smile or the twinkle of the eye with which the good doctor received this vow. I strutted out of the room and as I closed the door behind me shut off part of what he said:

"I'll bet you don't practice three!"

I tried to get a position that would give me hospital work, but, failing in this, hung up my shingle as a general practitioner. I had been practicing but a few months when an elderly lady came to my office and said that she would like me to treat her son. From her description of his disease I thought that it was probably melancholia. The young man was up and about and attending to business. I therefore suggested that he call at my office during my consultation hours. But his mother said that it was she who desired the services of a physician for her son and she could only succeed in submitting him to treatment and insisted on my going to the house. Besides, she wished him to see a woman physician whereas if he went to an office he would probably go to a man.

This argument prevailed, and it was agreed that I was to call the next day after 5 in the afternoon, when the young man—Dick—his mother called him—had returned from business. I made the call, was received by the lady and introduced to the patient.
There was that about him which reminded me of some one else, but I could not tell who the other person was. He did not appear to be ill, but appearances are often deceptive.

I plied him with questions, which he seemed disinclined to answer, and I succeeded in getting very little out of him. All I could do was to recommend that he take out of door exercise and have what society he relished.
His mother was present during the interview, and when I arose to depart
she put her arms about me and said:

"Help us out by giving us your company occasionally as well as your professional services, won't you? Dick won't go out, and I know no young persons to invite to the house."

I could give no definite reply to this of course, and simply bowed assent.

"Oblige me by staying to dinner with us," continued the old lady, and she began quietly to remove my hat and coat. I made but a faint resistance, and we were soon enjoying ourselves at table. For my life I could see no sign of illness in Dick, who was very entertaining and charmed me with his conversation.

I am not going to give the history of my professional treatment of my patient, Richard Ashley, for mingled with it is a love story of which he is the hero and I the heroine. He was never ill, though he led me to suppose that there was a nervous weakness about him that did not appear on the surface.
I studied his case for months, trying different remedies, which I had no doubts he ever took. Finally I found myself so deeply in love that I was ready to sacrifice my profession for him. Indeed, the great problem of my life became, not how to cure him, or any one else, for that matter, but to appropriate him to myself. It was I rather than he who suffered from a peculiar disease. If any attractive young woman came near him I was seized with a terrible anxiety lest some-other woman should take him away from me.

However, time proved that these fears were groundless, for one evening after one of my visits to him and I had been invited to dinner his mother left us alone together in the library and what I so desired was clinched by a proposal.

As soon as our engagement was made known to the members of our respective families congratulations began to come in. "His sisters and his cousins and his aunts" called on me and they were all not only very gratified to me, but regarded me with an amused curiosity. One day who should come to see me but my old preceptor, Dr. Phillips, to whom I had made this pledge not to marry. I could not escape him, so I faced him. He was brimming over with amusement.

"You little humbug!" he said. "I knew you would not be saved for the medical profession, so I resolved to get you into my family. I told my nephew about you and your pledge, suggesting that he make you break it. He has done his work beautifully, though his mother has been of great assistance to him."

"You miserable, mean, good for nothing!"

I threw myself into the dear old man's arms.

Have You Catarrh?
It's a Dangerous Disease—Hyomei
is the Effective Remedy.

Catarrh, which is indicated by sniffing, frequent coids and crusts in the nose is a serious disease and if not checked surely spreads to the delicate linings of the air passages,
and frequently destroys the hearing.

To cure catarrh you must have something that will quickly reach the diseased tissues, kill the germs, and drive out the poison.

Hyomei is just such a remedy.
Being a mixture of antiseptic oils that you breathe through a small inhaler its health-restoring medication cannot help going direct to the raw and inflamed lining of the nose and throat, quickly relieving that choked-up feeling, stopping the unclean discharges, and healing the sore spots—you breathe freely. Even the worst cases respond at once.

There is nothing for the treatment of catarrh that is easier, more pleasant or so satisfying as Hyomei.
People's Drug Store sells it on the "No-cure-no-pay" plan.

There's a big difference.

The designing, pattern-making, style-selection, and must not confuse such work with any ordinary for years and years. Baking is never a case of luck

but an absolute certainty.
A steady, even, intense heat circles all around the oven. Your baking will be done to perfection. Note the thermometer on oven door. A splendid cooker as well as baker. Various models of steel and cast ranges.
We have many styles and sizes of Mount Penn Stove in stock—no trouble to show them.
